CARROLL PIERCE KILLED

Jacksonville Negro Was Hit By Train In the Local I. & G. N. Yards Saturday Night.

Late Saturday night the remains of Carroll Pierce, a negro claiming Jacksonville as his home, were picked up in the I. & G. N. yards, near the Reagan street crossing, horribly mangled.

A negro that was with Pierce just before he was killed was arrested on suspicion that he knew something of the death, or in some way was responsible for it.

Justice Dexter held the inquest, and decided the victim was killed accidentally. The remains were shipped to Jacksonville yesterday.

Work Progresses Rapidly.

Work on the new Episcopal church at the corner of North Sycamore and Crawford streets progresses nicely. A large force of men is engaged on the job, and very soon this congregation will have a new home of which the city will be proud. Farewell services in the old building were held yesterday. The discarded building is an old one, and for many years stood on the lot where the Bratton Drug company now stands.

King's Daughters.

The King's Daughters will meet at the Congregational church tomorrow (Tuesday) at 3 o'clock p. m. All members are urged to be present.

The First Principle of the Salaried Man Should be TO SAVE

It is possible that luck may play an important part in the quick making of fortunes, but it has nothing to do with fortunes accumulated from the savings of labor.

A bank account, however, will be of assistance and the young man or woman who will take this method of saving from his or her salary will eventually reach the desired goal.

This bank welcomes the accounts of those people who are working on salary and have a desire to save part of it.

A double team ran away at an early hour this morning, coming west from the opera house building on Oak street to Tennessee avenue. In the buggy to which the team was hitched a white dog occupied a seat as the only occupant, and he seemed to be taking the incident easy and without fear. The team was finally stopped without any special damage being done. So far as is known the dog simply concluded that he had been going some.

MANGLED BY TRAIN.

Carter Moody and Maggie Elliott Met Death Near Houston.

Houston, Texas, Feb. 21.—Strewed for three-quarters of a mile along the Galveston, Houston & Henderson tracks, the horribly mangled remains of Carter L. Moody, Jr., and a woman named Maggie Elliott, who resided at No. 2808 Commerce street, were picked up this morning just east of the city limits. Some time during the early hours of the morning they were struck by a locomotive, which evidently carried them under the wheels, grinding them every foot of the distance, and finally dropping them mangled beyond recognition. Pieces of the bodies were picked up along the entire distance over which the couple were dragged, and but for their clothing and other personal effects it would have been impossible to identify them. The news train coming up from Galveston this morning brought the first intimation that a human being had met death under the wheels. Hanging on the pilot of the locomotive that pulled the News train into the Galveston, Houston & Henderson station was a man's clothing that contained portions of human remains. Curiously enough, the pocketbook of the man remained in his clothing, and a small amount of money and some papers were found intact. Justice of the Peace McDonald, who held the inquest, states that he believed the couple were dead when struck by the News train. He believes that a south bound freight train struck them, and that the News train struck the bodies after they had been dropped by the freight.

Moody secured a buggy at a local livery stable last evening about 10 o'clock, and in company with Maggie Elliott started driving.
